

Caricature Sequence May 2015

Life always surrounds us with responsibilities but these are priorities in life which enrich us with satisfaction if recognized and performed well. The following story vividly reflects this aspect of life. The story is about Juni, Huni and Buni's friend. Her name was Suni. During her medical career , she whole heartedly busied herself in attending the patients; being unmindful of the world around. All the friends worked together as a unit Suni has some intimacy with Buni as most of the time they were seen together discussing the plight of the patients. In order to relax their nerves, they used to spend some of their time in cafeteria and had fun just to revitalize their energies to get to the work again. Suni used to sing songs in her sweet melodious voice and thus they were passing the days of their lives. Their only concern was to serve humanity .

One day, when sun came home she found her mother anxiously waiting for her. Like all the mothers she has thoughtful concerns for her daughter's marriage. In this respect , she showed her a photograph to seek her consent. Suni a highly educated, dedicated and committed doctor, was a submissive daughter. She lowered her eyes and accepted the proposal . She might have cherished some feelings for Buni but she preferred the say of her mother. The family who has popped a question for Suni visited her house and Suni, very sophisticatedly served the guests. The date was finalized and Suni entered into a new phase of her life in November. She has happy married life. Joe, her spouse, was a very compassionate and mature man. He had insight into life and its affairs. Besides, he was a very cooperative husband and always helped Suni in domestic chores too. They were a happily married couple and were bestowed with a daughter and son. Being wife and then a mother, Suni became so much engrossed that she has to leave her job. She prioritized her responsibilities as a wife and mother. Her house and kids became the center of her attention and the years went by. Their children grew to be older when one day Suni happened to see her stethoscope and the urge to comfort and treat the people fighting for life again kindled her heart and she opened it up to her husband at night. In the morning Joe encouraged her and thus she applied rejoining. She resumed her services in the surgical ward. She used to leave her children in the daycare during her working hours at the hospital. So , through compatibility and collaboration of her husband she was able to shoulder the responsibilities as a mother and as a doctor on equal grounds. Successfully, she gave quality time to her family when needed and her husband rightly observed her passion for serving humanity, allowed her to continue the job. The considerate and generous support of her husband assisted her and it became a key to their happy married life.
